

Currently, I work as a waiter in Palermo, Buenos Aires (Argentina). Due to the precariousness of the sector (poor pay, rotating schedules, indefinite workload days, excessive night work, black work, etc.) and after the pandemic made me open my eyes that this was not going to be scalable over time and Besides, I didn't see myself working as a waiter all my life.

I made the decision to start studying programming.

I fell in love with this field, I spend hours and hours sitting always learning a little more and sometimes I feel that the day does not have enough hours to be able to learn at the pace that I would like. I know that I am just beginning in this and that to be relevant in the market I have to work harder. But my biggest goal every day that I open my eyes until I fall asleep, is to be able to turn my life around and enter the IT world.
